New and Improved and very cool!

Adjust-a-Spot Rolling Jack Arm Extensions from SVI

These arm extensions are useful on sliding arm rolling jacks a/k/a rolling bridges to accommodate wider wheelbase vehicles, lower profile track or race cars and Tesla EV's. Designed by SVI, these can be custom made for virtually any applicable make of rolling jack or rolling bridge.

To provide optimum positioning and stability, use of the two Adjust-a-Spot threaded positions allows users more flexibility in range. This means whether it is just a few inches of additional reach or up to 8-1/4" a side, a wide range of vehicles can easily and safely be lifted. Simply position the arm extensions over the arm using either the front or rear Adjust-a-Spot sets to achieve the width required and install the two firming screws and tighten snugly down. Then, add your existing adapters to the provided adapter receiving holes and lift your favorite vehicle.

This exclusive SVI product was re-invented and improved with some helpful input (a video) from Terry Sellers, an automotive enthusiast in Bryans Road, Maryland and Chad Marsh a Tesla owner in San Clemente, California who both helped us understand the need for the Adjust-a-Spot flexibility and reducing play or sag. Adjust-a-Spot accomplishes two things, one being the flexibility and the second being when the firming screws are snugged down on the arm, play or sag in the extension is greatly reduced or even eliminated.

When anyone needs solutions for common and not so common needs encountered in the automotive lifting industry, SVI is always first to be called on and the only company to truly offer sound help! Put the SVI innovative spirit to work for you today. SVI is your Answer!
